WASHINGTON, June 17.—The cost of living has begun to climb upward again to the general prosperity. The federal reserve board has announced that it expects the price of commodities to rise in the near future. The federal reserve board has also announced that it expects the price of commodities to rise in the near future.

FEW EXCEPTIONS
Generally all lines of commodities are subject of these reports, and general notable exceptions are the same. Food, fuel, clothing, building materials, manufactured articles, generally are up in price, both wholesale and retail from one to five per cent. In many lines, including wool, bituminous coal, iron, steel, and other lines, however, the price has advanced only a few cents. The price of the finished articles, however, is still in hot competition with the raw materials.

BUILDING MATERIALS
Building materials show a distinct advance in price, due largely if not wholly to the tremendous activity in construction work in 27 states. The price of lumber, for example, has advanced from $135.00 per 1000 board feet to $145.00 per 1000 board feet. The price of brick has advanced from $1.00 per 1000 to $1.10 per 1000. The price of cement has advanced from $1.00 per barrel to $1.10 per barrel.

LIVELY BONUS BILL BATTLE IN SENATE

A. R. HEYWOOD
GIVES $4000 FOR CHILDREN

Albott R. Heywood, former Ogden mayor and now chairman of the public utilities commission of Utah, has given $4,000 to the directors of the Carnegie library of Ogden, the money to be spent in fitting up a commodious and attractive children's room on the lower floor of the building. Part of the fund will provide for a room for government documents.

This is not the first time Ex-Mayor Heywood has come to the relief of the library. Several years ago when Chairman John Edward Carver was in need of money with which to purchase children's books Mr. Heywood gave $500. Again at a later date Mr. Heywood was one of several to give for the purchase of children's books. He gave $500, James Plungee gave $500 and M. S. Browning gave $500. Later Mr. Heywood gave $350 more for the same purpose.

The work of the library has grown so much in recent years that the present floor space is not adequate. When the schools are in session and reference rooms are needed the entire building is too small. The children's room throughout the school period is too small for the youngsters who seek the books and pictures and, as the library is the only place where they can get books and pictures, there has been a real need for just what Mr. Heywood's gift will make possible. With the money he has given a room equal to one and half of the ground space of the library can be fitted up and made attractive. It is the intention to make much of story hours and picture entertainment. The room will be made attractive by mural decorations, floor plans and wall pictures and all will be provided by the city through taxation levied by the city of Ogden.

The library board contends that the Ogden public library is handicapped by lack of funds with which to maintain the regular daily work. The fund is small in comparison with the tax revenue given other libraries by the people, directors say. The work is made more difficult by the fact that the Ogden library does far more work than the library of the average city of the size of Ogden. Letters were sent to 40 libraries of cities the size of Ogden recently and replies showed that Ogden was distributing 50 per cent more books and receiving 50 per cent less money than other cities of the same size.

Senator Walsh Says Majority Is Ducking and Dodging
DEBATE ENLIVENED
Smoot Says He Does Not Think Harding Will Sign Bonus

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The soldiers' bonus fight broke unexpectedly in the senate today when Democratic senators attacked the reported compromise agreement of Republican leaders not to call up the measure next Monday, but to have it follow the tariff bill.

For two hours the party leaders clashed but with no effect except for additional indications that the Republican plan would prevail. It was openly declared by some of those present, however, that an effort would be made to call up the bill next week and the situation was further complicated by failure of the senate today to dispose of the naval bill which went over until Monday largely because of today's protracted discussion of the bonus.

CONFERENCE WITH HARDING.
The senate fray followed conferences between President Harding and Republican leaders at which the president assured that Monday's conference of the Republican senators would result in holding the tariff before the senate, but with a declaration the bonus bill should be passed before congress adjourns.

That the president would sign the bill if passed and that it undoubtedly would be passed before adjournment was stated during the senate debate by Chairman McCormick of the senate finance committee in charge of both the tariff and bonus measures.

SENATE DEBATE ENLIVENED.
The senate debate was enlivened by a charge from Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, that "an honest majority" of the senate was not behind the bonus bill and that a group of senators professing to favor it were "ducking and dodging" and seeking to avoid going on record. Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, who initiated the discussion, demanded early action on the bonus measure and predicted its defeat if it should not be put ahead of the tariff. Congress would adjourn after disposing of the tariff bill, he said.

UNABLE TO REPLY.
Senator McCormick was asked point blank by Senator Ashurst whether he intended to carry out his plan announced June 8, to call up the bonus bill and lay aside temporarily the tariff measure within ten days or so. Interruptions of other senators prevented Senator McCormick from replying immediately, but later in a lengthy statement in behalf of the bill, he said he would be content if the Republican conference Monday would renew definitely what he said was the pledge of the party in power to pass the bill before adjournment.

Chairman McCormick of the senate finance committee told the senate this afternoon he believed the president would sign the bonus bill, but pressed by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, an avowed bonus opponent, he admitted he did not know what was on the president's mind. Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, and other administration leaders expressed the opinion that the president would never sign the bill as it was reported by McCormick from the committee.

Borah said he was ready for an immediate vote provided he could be convinced that the president would be satisfied with the bill. Borah intimated, however, that he did not think the president would be satisfied with it and that he did not share McCormick's opinion and belief that the president would sign it.

Finger Printing New Born Babes To Check Identity Mixups Urged By Experts

BY HERBERT ASBURY.
Special Dispatch to the Standard-Examiner.
(Copyright, 1922.)
NEW YORK, June 17.—Finger prints have been used as legal evidence in court actions involving the authenticity of Leonardo da Vinci's paintings, and now the health and police departments of New York have started a campaign to use fingerprints to identify newborn babies, partly to give the babies means of proving who they are and partly to prevent them being mixed up in the big maternity hospitals. This is admitted, sometimes is done despite the care that is taken, and the little name-bands plastered on the wrists.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner and Joseph A. Farout, third deputy commissioner and America's foremost expert in poroscopy, which is the art of fingerprinting, wants to fingerprint every baby born in New York. They declared today, and if they can not use the baby's fingers they will use his toes because a toe print is every bit as distinctive and infallible as a finger print.

It would be a wonderful thing, said Commissioner Farout today, "if we can educate public opinion to the point of seeing that every child born into the world is finger printed and the record, indelible and unshakable, attached to its birth certificate, or preferably smudged on the reverse side. With these prints available, there will not be any possibility of babies being mixed up in hospitals or anywhere else."

"Fingerprinting is absolutely reliable, even when the prints are made in infancy. The impression taken of the fingers or toes of a child only a few days old will compare precisely with any impression taken years later, excepting, of course, that the latter impression will be on a larger scale. A man can be identified by his fingerprints when he can be identified by nothing else, and if he is finger-printed when he is a baby and a record kept, the question of his identity is settled forever. And it is not so easy one might suppose to furnish absolute identification of one's self. There are thousands of men who cannot prove just who they are."

It undoubtedly will be a hard task for the authorities here to induce mothers to allow their babies to be finger-printed and toe printed. It won't be easy to get them to allow the ten little fingers and the ten little toes to be smeared with nasty black ink, and graphite and then pressed against a piece of paper even if the paper is his official ticket into the world. One reason for this is the fact that fingerprinting has always been associated more or less with criminality, but the world is fast outgrowing this notion. Finger prints now are used to identify depositors of postal savings banks in the large cities. Many banks and business houses use them and prints were made of every man who went into the army or navy during the war, to be filed with his permanent identification papers. Little Francis Xavier Kelly, the son of Mrs. Harriet Kelly of West Twenty-third street, has the honor of being the first baby to be finger printed in the new campaign of the health and police departments.

Francis Xavier came into the world a week ago at the Living in Hospital, and Commissioners Copeland and Farout and a corps of finger print experts from the health department offices and from police headquarters finger printed him.

"It was easier than he had expected. The baby emitted a howl of protest when they marched solemnly into his room where he lay with his mother. But Dr. Copeland made a lot of nice gurgling noises and let little Francis chew on his watch, and after that the baby watched the proceedings with evident interest."

OPERATION SUCCESS
Millionaire Recovering From Physical and Mental Trouble, Too

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
International News Service.
CHICAGO, June 17.—Tonight in the Wesley Memorial hospital he two men, one a multi-millionaire—Harold F. McCormick, the Harvester man—and the other a nameless, virile young chap recently of the army of unemployed. Between them exists a strange common bond. The younger man, for a consideration of something less than $500, has given his interstitial glands to the 51-year-old millionaire.

In a remarkable effort at rejuvenating the glands were transplanted Monday night by Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse, whose experiments with human and monkey glands have started medical circles.

SEEMS VERY WELL.
Mr. McCormick, who is chairman of the executive committee of the International Harvester company, smoked an occasional cigar as he sat propped up in bed in his luxurious suite this evening. His cheeks had a healthy pink flush and he appeared to be in excellent humor. He declined, however, to make a statement concerning the operation.

It is expected that he will leave the hospital within ten days. The younger man is in much better condition, it was said, and may leave at any moment.

Mr. McCormick's operation was said to be a success. It was reported to be a painless one, though one which is serious to one or both parties concerned. It was said the millionaire patient had been suffering mentally as John D. Rockefeller, whose operation was followed by him, was said to be in the hospital. The transplanting of the glands has brought relief to this mental trouble, too.

EXPERT ON GLANDS.
Dr. Lespinasse, who has performed 200 experimental operations on human glands, declined to discuss the operation.

"Can a physician discuss operations with the press?" he asked. "There has been talk that Mr. McCormick would give Ganna Walsky, the Polish opera singer, his daughter, Muriel, some time ago said he would. The day following the operation, he is said to have cabled the noted singer, who is in Paris, that the operation was successful."

The child was struck at the intersection of the Riverside road and Grant avenue just after he had dropped off the rear of a wagon on which he had been riding, at about 4 p. m. The driver of the Ford car, traveling northward, speeded up after striking the child and though followed by G. C. Anderson, 3211 Hyland drive, Hyrum Peterson and Mrs. Robert Mulhall, 3168 Hyland Drive, Salt Lake, and the license number secured they lost track of the car when it turned off Washington avenue into a side street.

POLICE ON WATCH.
Chief of Police Curtis L. Allison when informed of the accident immediately detailed all patrolmen and detectives in the city to watch for the transient car and also notified all surrounding towns to be on the lookout for the machine. He expressed the opinion that the driver would be apprehended before morning.

Frank Ryan and George Carrigan of Morgan, who were en route to Ogden and who saw the accident, directed the Salt Lake party to follow the automobile while they picked up the child and brought him to the intersection of Twenty-fifth and Washington avenue where they accosted Traffic Officer W. W. Richardson, asking for directions as to the disposition of the child.

BOY DIES ON WAY.
Traffic Officer Richardson jumped into the car and had them drive with all possible speed to the Dea Memorial hospital. The boy, however, died on the way to the institution.

Dr. M. J. Stone, intern at the hospital, found that the child's left temple above the ear was caved in and the child was dead when the automobile reached the hospital.

In the meantime neighbors in the vicinity of the accident had notified the mother who went immediately to the hospital and directed that the body be taken to the Lindquist undertaking parlors.

Turley, local business chance broker, who confessed, police say, to complicity in the murder.

The murdered woman was Mrs. Emma Wise, proprietor of a lodging house. Turley, under a hot grilling by police admitted, it was announced, that he knew of the killing of Mrs. Wise but declared that the actual crime was committed by another man whom he failed to name.

Turley was still closeted with police officers late this evening. The discovery of the murder victim was made after police had received a tip that led them to the deserted house.

WOMEN'S DUEL WITH PISTOLS
One Weapon Misses Fire; Other Shoots Wild; Then Both Weep

NEWARK, N. J., June 16.—Mrs. Anne Cappio and Marie de Salvo were arrested today by the police who charged that they had fought a revolver duel.

Neither woman was wounded. The police said Mrs. Cappio's revolver had missed fire while her opponent's shot went wild.

Neighbors told the police that Mrs. de Salvo, living apart from her husband, had been seen often with Cappio. The shooting was dramatic. With her 13-year-old daughter, Marie, Mrs. Cappio was said to have passed the corner, with a revolver in her waist. When Mrs. de Salvo appeared to do some shopping the child ran up to her screaming.

"Now you are going to get it," Mrs. de Salvo was said to have glanced at Mrs. Cappio, registered her house and appeared with a weapon. Then, according to the police, the women approached one another and within 15 feet apart, both drew their revolvers and began shooting. Suddenly both dropped their weapons and began weeping. A policeman took them to the station house where Mrs. de Salvo was quoted as saying: "I got my satisfaction. I am laughing but I am crying in my heart."

Both were held on charges of assault to kill.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, chairman of the agriculture committee, which has been investigating the various Muscle Shoals proposals, declared he was willing to displace the tariff bill and consider the Ford offer, or any other, but added:

"Taking everything into consideration, I don't think it will be a physical possibility to determine at this session upon a fixed policy for Muscle Shoals."
